Pet Semetary

Bart is the best according to Time Magazine and JHS. Carrie Keasey and Dalene Grant are a couple of Bart's biggest fans.

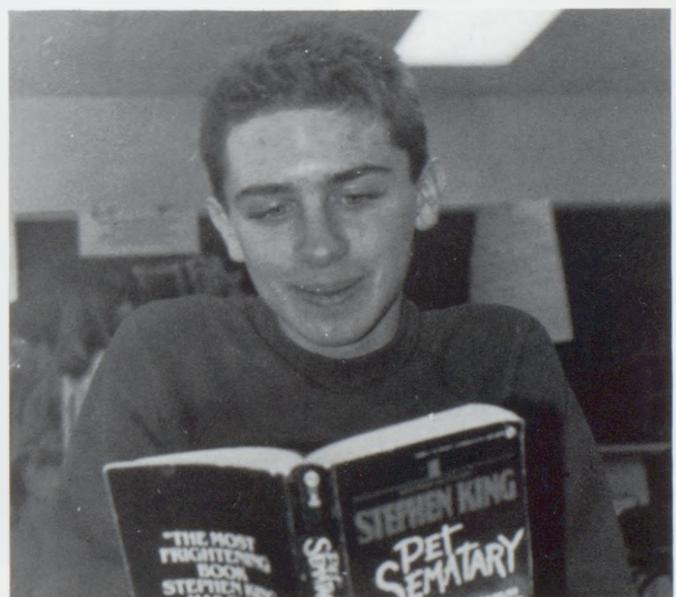

Sophomore John Davis, juniors Matt Coleman and Seth Chambers, Mr. Beason and on the pop machine David Bullock and junior Brad Grant would "Dew" anything for a can of JHS's favorite pop.

"Anybody for a piece of gum?" asks Joy Reaney as she unwraps a piece of Extra, the number one gum of JHS.

Reading with intensity is David Ring. He thoroughly enjoys the suspense of Pet Semetary by Stephen King, everyone's favorite book by a landslide.

A Student's Work is Never Done!

School...homework...friends...sports...clubs...How do students handle it all? A job would just complicate things, wouldn't it? Well, the students of JHS seem to have found a way to balance it all.

Ryan Horn, a freshman, worked at Adventureland this summer and for two months during the school year. He says it was hard to get his school work done, especially since he had to work six hours every night. He did his work in study hall.

Brian Lee, a sophomore, works at Hy-Vee. He does his homework during his free time, and still has time to be active in sports and clubs around the school.

Sarah Brown, a junior, works at the Children's Habilitation Center as a receptionist. She sums up what it's like to have a job in high school.

"My job gives me a lot of responsibility because I have to learn to handle a job and my school work."

Sarah says that when she has time, she does her homework at work. But what about when people can't do their schoolwork on the job? Senior Tammy Sonksen says she just has to learn to budget her time and schedule her work around school and activities.

Why do people have jobs in high school?

Jenny Miller, a junior who works at Van Dyke's Jewelry, says she needs the money to pay for gas and to use for spending money.

Tammy, who works at Baker's Square, knows why she makes the sacrifices she does to have a job.

"I'm going to college in the fall, and I need the money to help pay for school."

So even though it seems students are busy enough with school, they find time to earn money at part time jobs. With all of this going on, when do students relax?!?

-Jenni Glover

Amie Perdue, senior, works hard to write the receipt properly for a car sale at Acura.

"Coffee, tea or milk?" asks senior Tammy Sonksen as she prepares an order for her customers at Baker's Square on Merle Hay Road.

"Let's see: sauce, cheese, pepperoni, sausage and mushrooms. Did I forget anything?" wonders freshman Jim Clark.

While working, Marne Myers, sophomore, takes an order for one of their "Famous Dill Burgers."

It's All Relative

Everything is just a matter of perspective, right? A problem can seem like a major crisis in your life or just a minor inconvenience - it all depends on your perspective. It's the same way with school. One word that could be used to describe JHS is unlimited. What does unlimited mean? It could mean that it will be an eternity before the year is over or that the year will be filled with endless possibilities. This book will try to describe what unlimited at JHS really means.

The cover itself is the beginning of the explanation. The lightbulb represents the thoughts and ideas of the students at JHS. There's no limit to the goals they can achieve. The letters stand for communication. Whether it's through speaking or writing, we're constantly expressing our thoughts and feelings to others everyday. Life at JHS is represented by the DNA strand. The student body participates in countless activities, which adds to the positive impression JHS has of being a school where people like to be involved. All of these things give JHS unlimited potential for excellence.

Of course, JHS wouldn't be what it is without the support of the community. There is always a large turnout for school events. The community also supports JHS financially. JHS is able to participate in many exciting programs because of the funds available to us. We have new facilities for the students to use and a large number of computers are available thanks to community support.

The students at JHS are very close. The school is small enough for everyone to be friends. Yet, JHS is still big enough for everyone to develop individuality.

-Stephanie Eich

"Let's see, what class do I have now?" wonders freshman Jaime Johnson as she pauses at her locker.

Give me an N! Give me an H! Give me an S! Senior members of National Honor Society, Steve Rittgers, Kim Hammen and Gina Yanders, get themselves psyched up for the next event in Club Olympics.

A lovely damsel in distress awaiting her rescue...junior Kristi Ralph plays the part of "Wanda" in the Madrigal Dinner skit.

Unlimited Life

Freshmen or seniors, Johnston students could be described with one word: involved! There's something for everyone here, and it's all ours for the asking. Some of us find it hard to fit all of the activities we want to do into four years. Priorities must be made and work must be done, but it all helps to make us who we are and who we will become.

Whether scoring the winning touchdown, singing our hearts out, struggling to get up for early morning practices or supporting our friends in their activities, JHS provides unlimited chances to experience high school to the fullest.

-Jenni Glover

M.C. Hammer...Paula Abdul...and of course the Rockettes. Sophomores Stayce Westover, Tiffany Zortman, Becca Perry, Linda Kinney, Christine Lim Yao, Emily Hicks and Tara Oiler show off some leg at the Homecoming dance.

Drink the whole thing?! Senior Ryan Flannery attempts to drink a gallon of grape juice. This was just one of the many events that took place at the Club Olympics.

On your mark, get set ... Club Olympic participants seniors Lisa Moss, Missy Oldham, Lisa Schultz and junior Andy Vantreese, anxiously await the start of the game.

These enthusiastic seniors Janelle Jarnagin, Hanh Le and Ginger Rieger, get fired up for the Club Olympic games.

Work, work, work!! Sophomore Jenny Duckworth patiently spray paints the float for the Homecoming parade. The class of '93 received first place this year in the float competition.

Making a Power Play

"We've Got the Power," the theme of Homecoming week said it all. The sophomores used this theme for their float and won first place. Their float consisted of a dragon made of chicken wire and stuffed with paper that pulled the switch of an electric chair to jolt the Perry blue jay. Juniors captured second while third place went to the seniors. Freshmen came in fourth.

Following the parade, the second annual Club Olympics took place. Ten teams were involved. The Regulators, an independent team, won. Libby Felton and Jenny Duckworth, fellow team mates, commented, "The Bottoms-Up relay was the most exciting because we took off our socks and shoes to try and pass the ball." Two TLC teams, My Ties and Controlled Chaos, placed second and third.

Many events were held. During two of the games participants raced against each other on tricycles and on piggy-back. During musical chairs, shaving cream was put on every chair. Eventually, it was on everyone including the spectators. The juice drinking contest and water balloon toss were a wet experience. Students passed a volleyball to each other with their feet and tried to catch another team's tail during "Catch the Dragon's Tail." "The events were a lot of fun and got everyone in the spirit for Friday's game," said Jenni Glover.

Immediately after the Club Olympics the bonfire was held.
-Christine Lim Yao

Senior AJ White puts the finishing touches on the "Dragon Wagon" before the parade.

Preparing for competition is junior Joe Bouger, decorating the hall with class of '92 balloons.

Heading for the slopes is sophomore Justin Allen, fully dressed for Arctic Day.

"Time for a shave!" say TLC members sophomore Christine Lim Yao and junior Cally Coleman during the Homecoming pep assembly as they prepare their victims junior Chad Barnes and senior Corey Quandt.

Freshmen Zach Meyers and Stephanie Harper share their first Homecoming slow dance.

All Decked Out For Homecoming

Lots of school spirit made Homecoming week one of the most exciting times of the year.

The dress-up days started Monday with Hat Day.

Homer, Marge, Bart, Lisa and Maggie Simpson were worn by Johnston students Tuesday.

People wore winter apparel Wednesday. This was also Toga Day.

The student body looked very impressive Thursday in their "Sunday Best" and were decked out with purple and gold apparel on Friday.

When asked about her favorite dress-up day, senior Jennifer Makeeff replied, "It has to be Toga Day because we got to run around in sheets all day!"

But before Johnston fans could head for the stadium, they went to the gym for the pep assembly. The freshman and sophomore football players tried shooting some hoops with a football. Freshman Lane Sires broke the tie with his shot off the backboard.

While one group of varsity football players searched for

M&M's in a whipped cream pie, another group took part in a TLC skit about the secret of Dragon power.

The sophomores won the hall decorating competition with their Dragonizer theme.

Over 400 students attended the dance Saturday night. Students danced while listening to songs played by Q-102's Music in Motion. Sophomore April Bitterman said, "They played good songs. Homecoming's only one night and I wish it would have lasted longer."

-Joanna Stookey

Anybody found the M&M yet? Juniors John Moller and Jeff Gilchrist stuff their faces with whipped cream to find theirs at the pep assembly during Homecoming week.

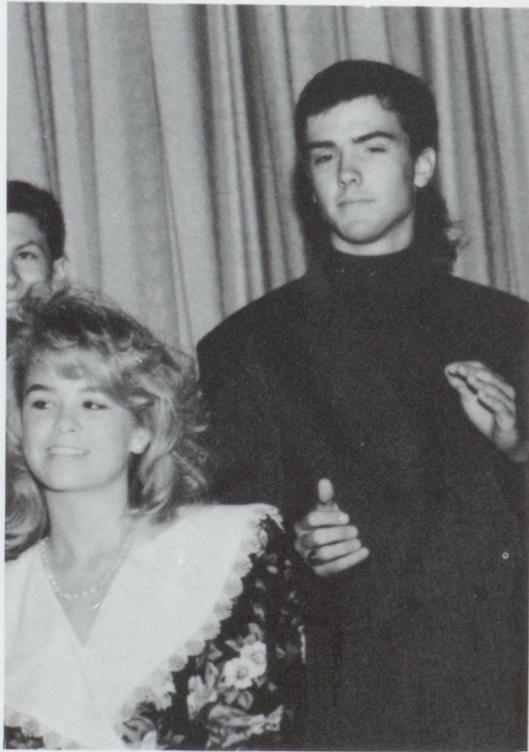

HOOMEOMING ROYALTY. Queen Kayla Davis, Attendants Tammy Sonksen and Jesi Foley. Back Row: King Brian Duckworth, Attendants Jeff Heinen and Brad Craig.

Waiting in anticipation for the announcement of king and queen are seniors Brad Craig and Tammy Sonksen.

Fit For a King and Queen

Slowly, deliberately and antagonistically, the whole Homecoming court is tense with anticipation while student body Vice-President Chris Ring takes his time pronouncing the king and queen. He's teasing them by moving the crown down and yanking it away right before he places it on the winner's head. Finally, Ring rests the king crown on Brian Duckworth's head. Everyone cheers and yells while Duckworth stands there grinning from ear to ear. Brad Craig and Jeff Heinen, the other two king candidates, congratulate and commend him. Still one more to go. At last Ring eases the tension by placing the tiara on Kayla Davis' head. Bliss covers Davis' face while Jesi Foley and Tammy Sonksen, the other queen candidates, hug and support her.

The entire student body participated in voting for the Homecoming court, which took place on Tuesday of Homecoming week. It was a tough choice, but the students managed to find two deserving candidates from each class. For the freshman class Jami Kennel and Wade Sewell were the attendants. Representing the sophomore class were Emily Hicks and Todd Johnson. The junior class chose Jenny Miller and Chad Barnes for their class attendants.

When asked what Homecoming meant to him, Brad Craig said, "It was a great experience being on the Homecoming court, but also being student body president made it difficult because I couldn't crown the king and queen."

-Sarah Hartle

"As I Always Say...Success"

"Good-bye," everyone yelled as the curtain fell. The play was finally over, all the hard work had paid off. Cast and crew members huddled in a big group hug. Raggedy Ann and Andy was a success. All those 7:00 a.m. practices came to a halt. No more rehearsing scenes over and over again.

"This play was the most challenging of all the other plays we've done because of the 11 different scenes. It was also the funniest," Mrs. Kielhorn, the director, announced proudly. It was also challenging because the play was performed twice for the elementary school children. This as well as two night performances made four performances in just two days.

The play was about Raggedy Ann and Andy on their trek to save Babette from the evil Witch Wigglewort.

Erik Halling and Ryan Flannery added to the comical side of the play, parading through the audience cracking jokes as Prince Leonard the Looney Hearted and Lester Looney.

"They were hilarious. They were the funniest part of the whole play" commented sophomore David Ring.

Shannon Hines played the lead of Raggedy Ann. "I had fun because I got to know a lot of people who I didn't know and renew old friendships."

Mrs. Kielhorn added, "The best part of the play is the friendships that are made."

Everyone agreed, the play started out with a group of people and ended with a group of friends.

"What is this anyway?" wonders Lester Looney, portrayed by junior Erik Halling as he unwinds string from a catcher's mitt??

Student Directors Are Challenged

"Where is my costume?"

"Has anyone seen my prop?"

"Am I saying this right?"

"Do I have enough make up on?"

If someone would have been backstage on the night of the spring one-act plays, a few of these things might have been heard.

Preparation for these plays was both fun and chaotic. Chaotic because this year the plays were directed by student directors.

"Sometimes practices were hectic because we were really in charge of ourselves and this was new to all of us. There were times we had to struggle through, but it was worth it." Or at least that's what sophomore Joanna Stookey thought. She was in the play This is a Test directed by senior Chris Weiss.

"Directing was really easy because we had a really great cast," said Chris.

The play was about what goes through the mind of a teenager as he or she is taking a test. The other play, Nobody Sleeps, directed by junior Ian Barstow is about a burglar who robs the home of three ditzy girls and gets caught. The mother of these girls was portrayed by sophomore Jodi Bowers.

"Practices were more relaxed and we got to know each other better, so it was easier to work together," she said.

All in all the spring plays went off without a hitch and the student directors should be commended.

Royal Court members senior Ryan Flannery, sophomore Jimmy Stark, and senior Missy Oldham perform in their small group. These are just three of the five Johnston students accepted to the All-State Chorus.

Realizing this is her final Madrigal Dinner, senior Jenny Oxley takes a moment to reflect on the past four years.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Town Crier freshman Matt Nyberg announces the rules of etiquette before the dinner begins.

He may not be good for much, but he is good for notting! Sophomore Brendan Sapienza plays the evil Sheriff of Nottingham in the Madrigal skit.

The Show Must Go On

The melted candles flickered softly and cast dim shadows off the walls as the last notes of "My Friends We Now Must Leave Thee" floated out into the room. All members of the audience held their breath as the beautiful voices lingered for a few last fleeting moments. Applause broke out and people rose in a standing ovation to honor the Madrigal Dinner's talented performers.

No one who saw this show would have guessed the events of the 48 hours which led up to the dinner. The morning before the performance brought a phone call to Concert Choir director Mrs. White. "The people from Camp Dodge told me we couldn't have the program there. We had already lost rehearsal time due to the snow day on Monday, so this just added to the problem," explained Mrs. White. This led to a frantic search for another location to perform. The Meredith Drive Reformed Church was a lot smaller than what they had been used to, but at this point the Concert Choir decided to make use of what they could find. The church became the new location and the next 24 hours were spent trying to get organized. "It was a crazy time with everyone tense and nervous, but in the end it all worked out," commented senior Ginger Reiger.

Any tension that may have existed vanished the second the performance began. Despite the last minute change, the church looked beautiful, the skit made everyone laugh and the enchanting singing put all who were present in the mood for Christmas.

Treasures of the Deep

"My parents got a new camera just for the occasion. I was dreading having him pick me up because I knew they'd get carried away with taking pictures," said junior Jenni Glover.

Posing for pictures seemed to be the first event of the evening for everyone going to prom. In fact, the posing went on all night long.

After pleasing the parents with pictures, most moved on to one of Des Moines' finer restaurants. The Crystal Tree, Hemingway's, and The Greenbrier were just a few of the more popular spots.

Prom was held at the Des Moines Botanical Center. This year's theme was "Treasures of the Deep." The prom committee put in a lot of time to get the prom put together. They built a big ship and a treasure chest which served as the background for photographs. The plants, flowers, and water were beautiful natural decorations. Sophomores, who were dressed as pirates, served punch and greeted the prom-goers.

Refreshments included both blue and green punch and "gold coins."

Around 10:30 the slide show began. This allowed the seniors to laugh at how classmates used to look. After the slides, the Prom King, Queen, and Court were named. Brad Craig and Tammy Sonksen were crowned King and Queen. Members of the court were Traci Kilbourne, Steve Rittgers, Kami Gay, Brian Duckworth, Jesi Foley, and Jeff Heinen.

The prom committee's work paid off with a successful prom where many discovered the "Treasures of the Deep."

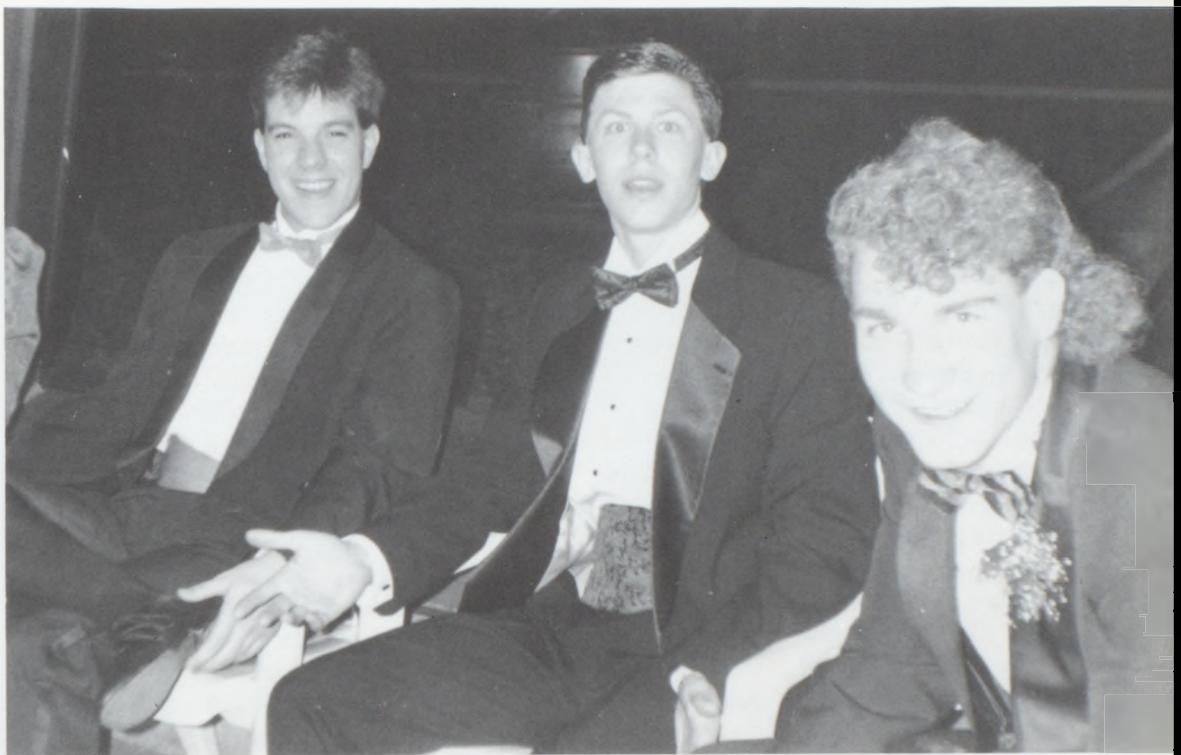

-Gina Yanders

Service with a smile. Sophomore Heather Henning serves punch to senior Chris Whitehill and his date as they sit on the balcony at the Botanical Center.

Watch your step! Junior Katherine Hayes laughs as her date junior Brian Grant slips on the stairs.

Hey, sophomore Jill Olsen, are the treasures of the deep behind that curtain?

With the glittering Des Moines skyline as a backdrop, Ryan Flannery and Chris Osborn relax as an uptight Chris Ring asks, "What?!?"

Juniors Brad Grant and Jenni Glover pose for one of the many pictures taken on Prom night.

Rocking 'til the Broad Daylight

"One, two, three o'clock, four o'clock rock!" These lyrics to the song "Rock Around the Clock" perfectly described the After Prom Party. The party began at 12:00 after the dance. Students rocked all around the clock until 4:30 the next morning.

Balloons, 45's, and life size posters of stars such as Marilyn Monroe, James Dean and Marlon Brando decked out the student center, carrying students back in time to the 1950's. The drinks served, such as green rivers, cherry cokes and root beer floats not only helped to quench thirst, but added to the 50's atmosphere.

Games such as pop bottle ring toss, black jack, dice games and free throw toss kept everyone busy throughout the night. A major highlight came with a JHS style Dick Clark talent show. Andy Vantreese and Brian Morris stole the show and captured the $100 first place prize. "All of the acts were really good but Andy and Brian's got the attention of the crowd right away," said junior Johnny Moller.

Not only does the After Prom Party involve having a great time, there are also prizes to be won. Throughout the night things such as tanning sessions were given out. But, at 4:00 a.m. the "real" prizes were awarded. Those students who were still present were rewarded with such things as TV's, a VCR, a CD player, and a word processor.

These prizes topped off an evening of rock, roll, fun and games. Senior Tania Sederwall summed up the night by saying, "The whole night was great and all the planning that went into it was worth it."

-Carrie Holcomb

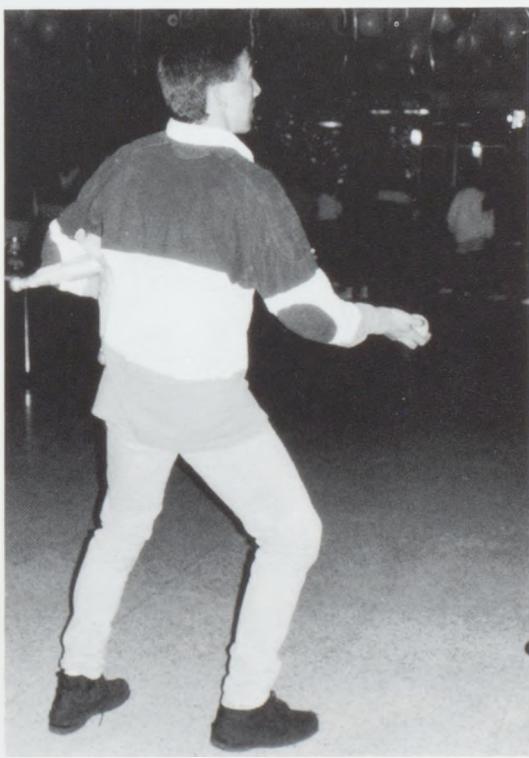

Junior Erik Halling provides some tough competition in the hool-a-hoop contest.

"Twist and Shout!" Senior Leslie Smith hool-a-hoops the night away at the After Prom Party.

Who could help but smile when surrounded by royalty? Sophomore Morgan Holcomb can't contain hers as she stands between Homecoming King Brian Duckworth and Prom King Brad Craig.

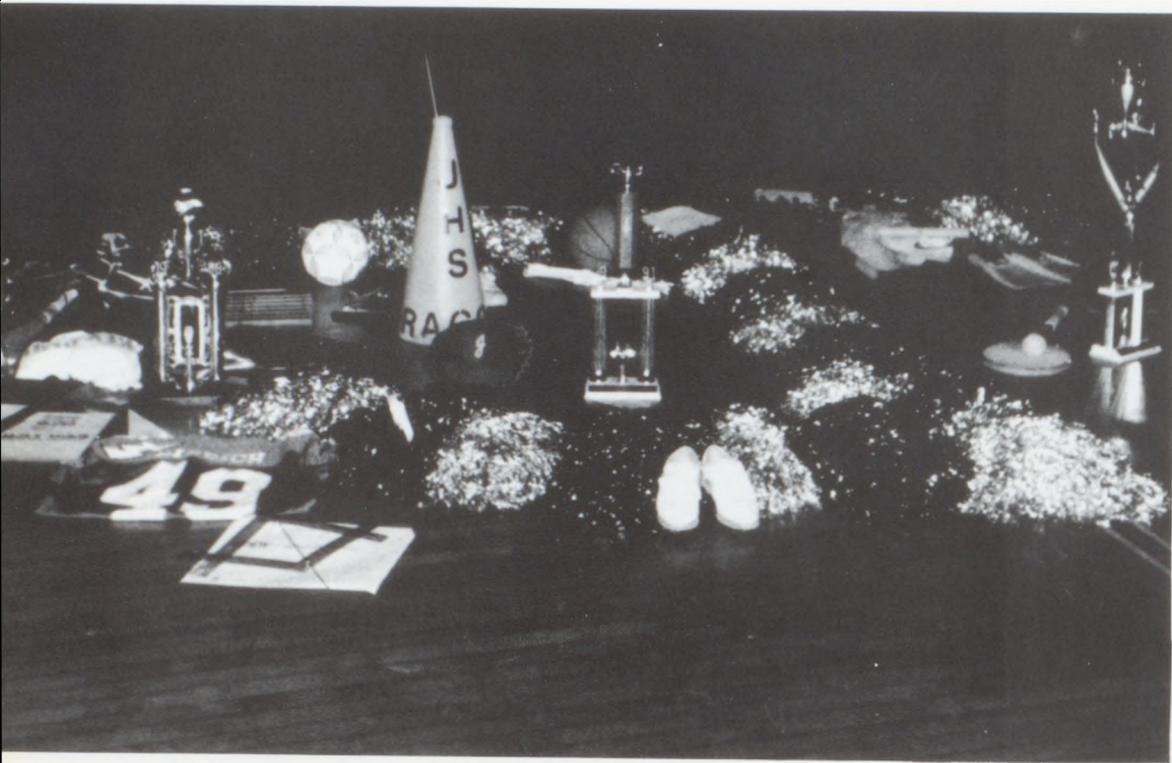

Trying to win as many tickets as possible, junior Johnny Moller tries his hand at jacks. Students could use the tickets to purchase prizes throughout the night.

"You've lost that loving feeling!" Seniors Jason Scheller and Chris Whitehill croon to an unresponsive cardboard poster of Marilyn Monroe.

"For Just A Moment" the seniors reflected back on the past four years and their achievements by placing these mementos in the center of the gym.

As their senior year comes to an end, Kham Baccam and Deb Arguello wait for the Senior Spotlight to start.

"Congratulations!" says Tom Downs as he shakes hands with senior Rick Hartley. Rick won a Senior Academic Achievement Award for having a 3.75 g.p.a. all four years of high school.

"Let's see what's next?" says sponsor Shari Walling as she looks for an award during the Class Day Assembly.

For Just A Moment

"Class Day is a special moment that we spend together that I will remember forever!" Hanh Le pretty much summed up what most of the seniors thought of Class Day.

The Junior/Senior Board, sponsored by Shari Walling, Joyce Rash and Cookie Cranston, was responsible for Class Day. Senior board member Lisa Moss said, "We spent lots of time and we all thought about quitting at one time or another, but in the end it all paid off." The board met during the summer once a month and more often during the school year. One of the hardest parts of Class Day was making sure the right people got to the right place at the right time.

Other than graduation, Class Day was one of the last times the senior class of 1991 spent together. As they were recognized for all of their achievements and accomplishments, the class looked back on their fondest memories of high school. They also looked forward to a new beginning.

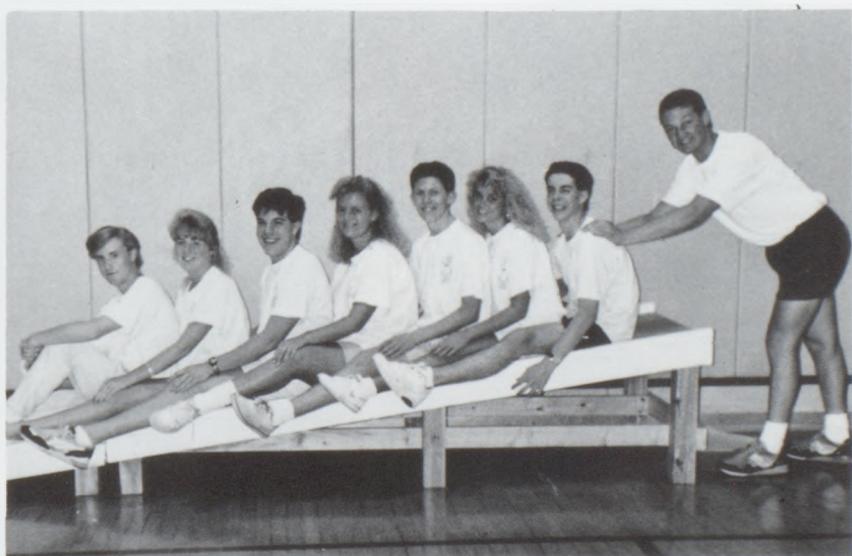

Senior Jesi Foley

said, "I have mixed feelings. I am sad and happy. I'll miss everybody!"

Class Day provided an opportunity to honor Dollars for Scholars recipients. Over $20,000 was distributed among 57 recipients.

Flag Corps, Pom Squad and cheerleaders performed while Chorus sang and Band played for the last time. Students were spotlighted and parents cried. A feeling of hope for the future and wistfulness for the past swept over the crowd.

Caps, Gnats Fly

At 2:00 p.m. on Sunday, May 26, students arrived at the auditorium for Baccalaureate. An inspirational message was given by Pastor John Palmer.

Commencement began at 3:00 as students proceeded into the gym to "Pomp and Circumstance."

Addressing the senior class were Jeff Heinen and Carrie Holcomb. Jeff entertained the audience with the immortal words of Dr. Seuss. Carrie reminded her classmates of the vast possibilities for their lives. Both did an excellent job, although Carrie had a distraction. "There was a little gnat flying in front of my face during the first part of my speech. I didn't want to swat it away, but I was afraid it was going to fly into my mouth," she later explained.

Dr. Sundblad congratulated the seniors on their fine accomplishments and Barb Allen, president of the Board of Education, awarded the diplomas.

Some students crossed the stage with tears in their eyes, while others beamed proudly as they realized their diplomas were indeed signed.

"Congratulations each and every one of you," said Barb Allen after the last diploma had been received. Following this announcement, the air was filled with purple caps. The class of 1991 had graduated.

"We made it!" Ginger Rieger excitedly hugs a friend following graduation.

Americans "Watch the War"

On August 2nd, 1990, the history of the United States took a major turn. The nation of Iraq had invaded the small oil producing country of Kuwait and threatened to take over Saudi Arabia. Concerned with the possibility of losing a large supply of oil, President George Bush sent troops to Saudi Arabia. This was the beginning of a tense path which led up to the Persian Gulf War.

As students at JHS made plans to return to school, thousands of men and women began to go to the Middle East in what became known as Operation Desert Shield. At first, one of the biggest concerns to many students was the rapid rise in gas prices. Instead of paying $1.09 or so per gallon of gas, after the tensions in the Middle East began to escalate, a gallon cost up to $1.45.

As the next few months passed with more and more soldiers called to duty, Americans became intensely involved in Desert Shield. For some it meant putting an American flag on the front porch and making care packages to send to loved ones in the Gulf. Many students began letter writing campaigns to soldiers in the Gulf. Others who did not agree with the actions of the United States spent their time protesting Desert Shield.

By the middle of October, the United States had over 200,000 troops in the Gulf. It had become commonplace for many students to have a friend or family member either in the Gulf or waiting to be called to active duty.

November 26, 1990, was a memorable day for many people at JHS. This was the day on which students and staff left first period classes and headed out to the front lawn to watch a parade. This was not just any parade, it was a caravan of National Guard Reserves who were on their way to Saudi Arabia. For many students, this day meant more than just skipping first hour class. Actually seeing the soldiers drive by marked the first time many students were directly affected by the possibility of war. For others who already had family or friends in the Gulf, it served as a painful reminder of how difficult it had been to see them go.

As students concerned themselves with wrestling meets and basketball games, the United Nations Security Council was debating whether to set a deadline for Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait. On the last day of November, from January 16 to February 27

the UN approved January 15th as the day on which Iraq had to be completely out of Kuwait, or force would be used to drive them out.

As students studied for 1st semester exams, the country held its breath as the UN January 15th deadline approached. While it appeared that an Iraqi withdrawal was not a possibility, many clung to the hope that war could be avoided. January 16th brought an announcement from President Bush. He told the nation that he had ordered the commencement of air attacks, and that Desert Shield was to become Operation Desert Storm. The war had begun.

The patriotic fervor in the United States peaked during the Gulf War. Where our news had been primarily Desert Shield coverage before January 16th, after war broke out, it was not possible to turn on the television without hearing about the war. A pastime of many Americans became going home and "watching the war." Care packages and letters were sent in incredible numbers to the Middle East. Songs advocating world peace, such as Bette Midler's "From a Distance" sounded out from radios.

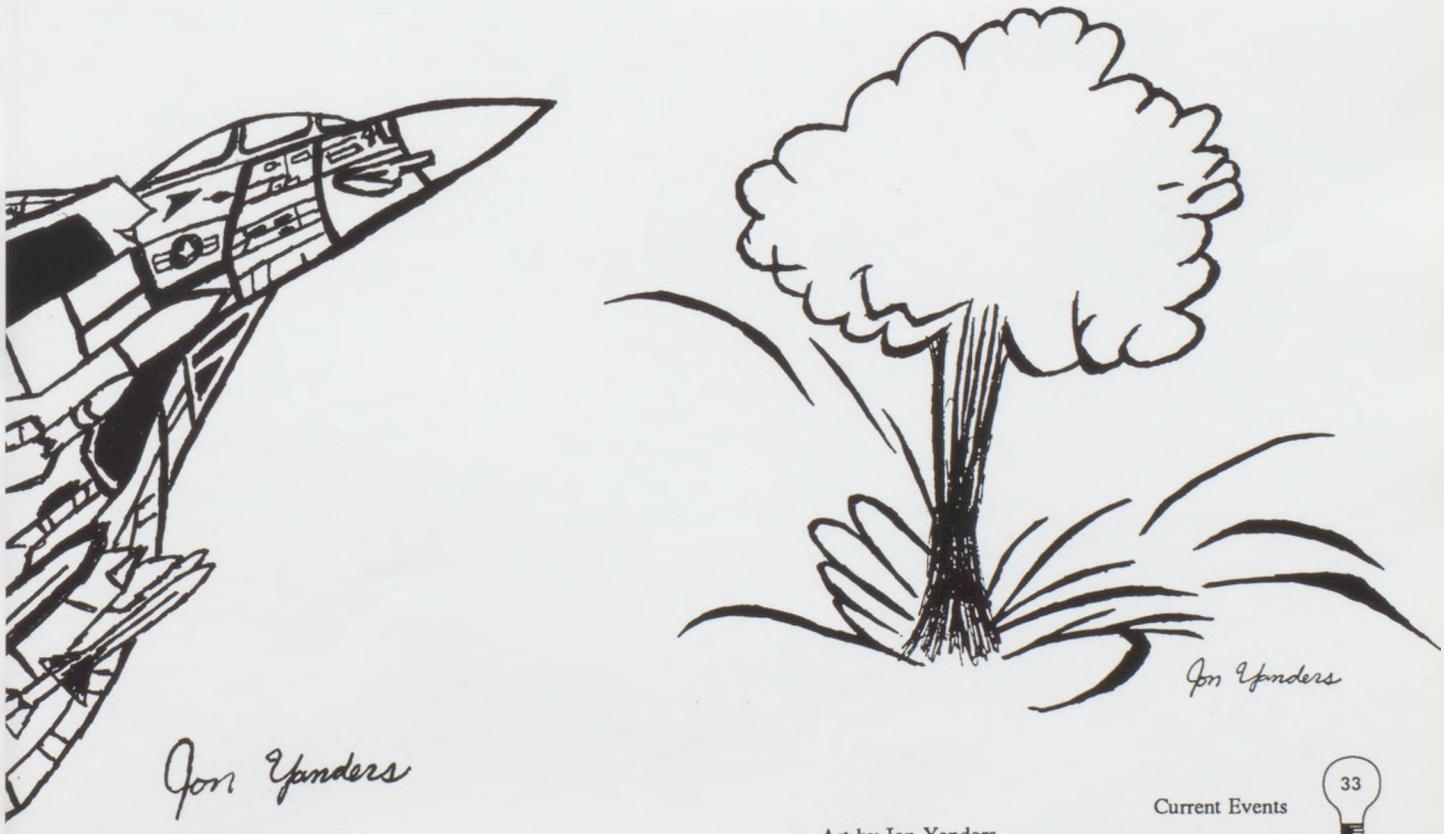

The United States dominated Iraq in a matter of days. The air attack lasted until February 27 when the President launched the ground offensive. Two days later, the war was over. Americans savored the victory and anxiously awaited the return of the troops.

April 30th and May 10th were special. These two days brought everyone from JHS to the front lawn once again as busses of Desert Storm soldiers drove past on their way to Camp Dodge. These were much more festive occasions than the November 26th parade had been. Students cheered and waved enthusiastically at the soldiers who were returning home.

President Bush summed up the patriotic feelings of many during a speech made after the war had ended. "Americans are a caring people. We are a good people, a generous people... We went halfway around the world to do what is moral and just and right. And we fought hard, and--with others--we won the war. And we lifted the yoke of aggression and tyranny from a small country that many Americans had never even heard of, and we asked nothing in return. We're coming home now, proud, confident, heads high... We are Americans."

Unlimited Action

From the coaches to the players and from the cheerleaders to the fans, working as a team everyone accomplished more. A person's ability to work with the team made the difference. This allowed the unlimited talents of the Dragons to shine-talents that made JHS the team to beat.

The Baseball team and Varsity Boys' Basketball team came within a few points from a trip to the State Tournaments. The Varsity Volleyball team captured the conference title, while the Girls' Varsity Basketball team not only won conference, but also moved on to regionals. And the future looks bright. The Sophomore Football team was undefeated and the Freshman Volleyball team lost only one match. All these things contributed to the name Johnston made for itself.

Home Runs and Heartbreaks for The Dragons of Summer

"With only two returning starters we were a young team who hadn't worked together much. Next year we are looking forward to a better season," Kim Hammen recalled as she summarized the '89-90 softball season.

The softball girls had a disappointing season, with a conference record of two wins and 11 losses.

Some of the team's goals were to win the Bondurant Tournament, place in the Boone Tournament and work together as a team. Although they didn't achieve any of these goals, they did accomplish one. In their last game against Bondurant they didn't commit an error. Coach Walling thought it was the best game they ever played. Lisa Moss said, "We tried our hardest this year and next year we will strive even harder."

Hammen and Moss were honored with Special Mention All-Conference.

The baseball team ended the season with a 12-2 record for the conference. This record led them to win the Little Hawkeye Conference. They went on to become district champions. These were both goals for the team.

The head coach for the Dragons, Mr. Mahoney, said, "Everybody played well and the end of the season showed that."

Another goal for the Dragons was to be rated in the state. The team was rated sixth towards the end of the season. Their highest ranking was fourth.

Congratulations went to Matt Duckworth, Frank Gilliam and Brian Duckworth, who made first team All-Conference. Dan Voorhees, Shane Biever and Jeff Heinen made second team All-Conference. First team All-District was honored to have Brian Duckworth as well as Brian Glenn on second team All-District. Matt Duckworth also made All-State Academic.

New Coaching Staff Makes '90 A Building Year

The Mighty Johnston Dragon football team crushed the Jefferson Rams in the opening game of the 1990 season. The team was very proud of their accomplishment since the Rams made it to the State Playoffs. "We started off the season by showing a strong team when we defeated the Rams. It really got us fired up for the season ahead," said senior Ashish Mishra.

The Dragons had quite a productive season, not necessarily in wins but in the growth of team unity. "We really learned to work together and could easily rely on each other, both in practice and during the games," junior Brian Jorgenson commented.

Team unity and hard work paid off when they triumphed over the Perry Bluejays during the Homecoming game in a 36-7 victory.

Considering the fact that this year's team consisted of a new coaching staff and a completely new defense and offense, the season was looked upon as a positive learning experience. Because some of the younger players had the opportunity to play varsity, "The future looks bright," said Coach Auxier. "The great senior leadership we had and also the ability of the younger players made this team unique."

First team Little

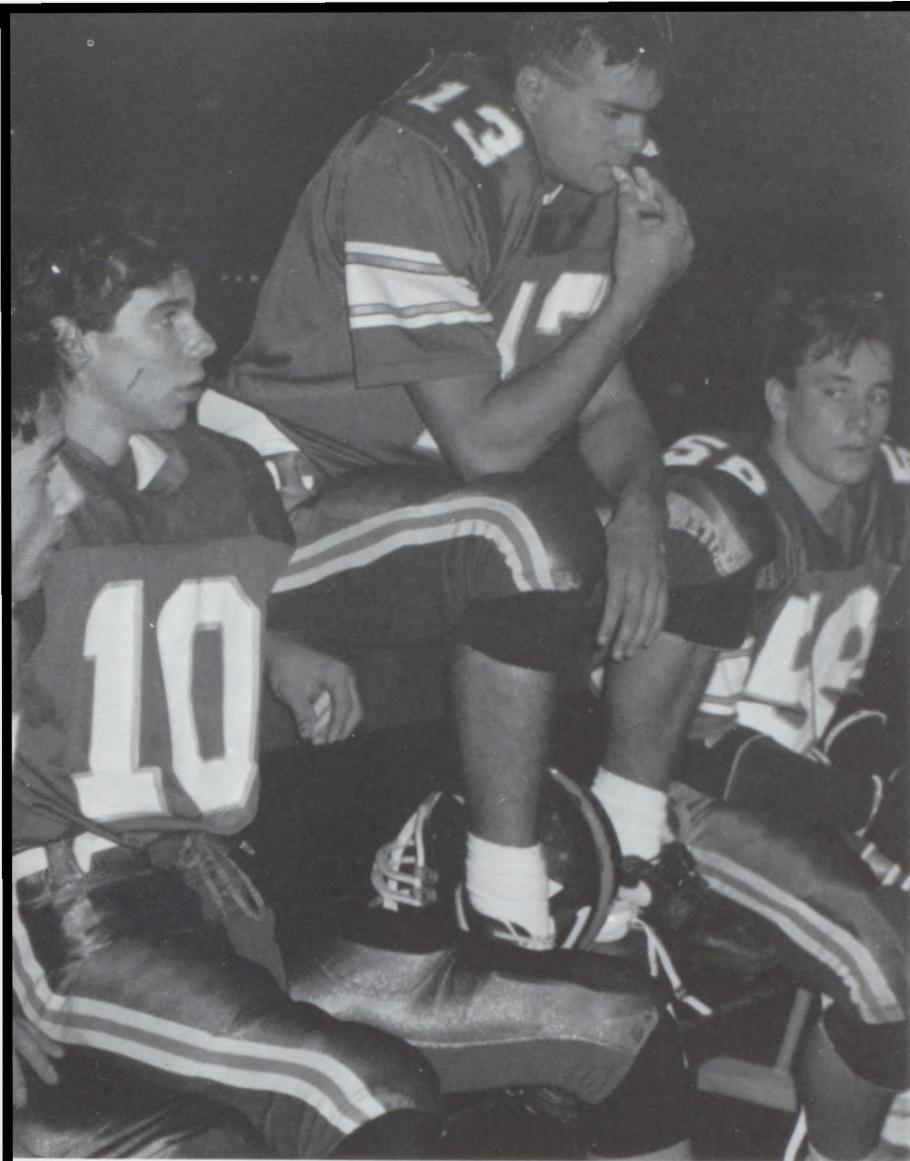

Hawkeye All-Conference honors went to junior Kelly Shoop. Ryan Sewell, Brian Padavich, Ramel Olcott and Jeff Himrich were named to the second team. Sophomore Kirk Ojendyk and Brian Duckworth were given special mention. Honorable mention went to Chad Barnes, Frank Gilliam, Kirk Maasen, Jason Scheller, Barrett Thompson and Brad Wager.

Experiencing the Sweet Taste of Victory

A round of applause should go to the sophomore and freshman football teams for their winning seasons. For the first time in many years, JHS had an undefeated football team. The sophomores ended their season with an outstanding 7 and 0 record.

253 to 12...This is the number of points the sophomores scored as compared to the number their opponents scored.

"This made the entire season awesome, only giving up 12 points," commented team member Jeff Featherstone.

Coach Eckhardt felt that a major strength of the team was the defense. "The defensive line held the opponents and gave the offense good field position.

They caused many turnovers and scored almost every game."

The freshmen began their high school career with a strong season. Coach Baltzley said, "With these abilities, they will accomplish great things."

One of the biggest highlights of the season came during the last game. "Clarke fumbled the ball and we recovered it. We came back and scored a touchdown to win the game. It was an awesome way to finish the year." This was what Lane Sires had to say of the victory. Sires went on to say that he felt Wade Sewell was one of the most valuable players on the team. He attributed this to the fact that Sewell was able to play both offense and defense.

Push them back! Playing against Carlisle, Lane Sires, Jeremy Rinehart and Scott Whitlow try to prevent Carlisle from scoring.

Conference Title For Spikers and Setters

"They were an outstanding team. We all had fun because they enjoy playing. I was surprised by our depth. We scrimmaged with 14 people rotating in and that helped us set up game situations and develop our skills," said varsity volleyball coach Nancy Wuttke.

The team goals were to win conference and win the first round of regionals. They successfully reached their first goal. "We didn't expect to play as well as we played. We only had some starters from last year," said Hanh Le, captain.

With a conference record of 6-1, the Girls'

Varsity Volleyball team placed first at the conference tournament and tied Perry for first in the conference championships. "We believed in ourselves and deep down inside we really wanted to win and so we worked hard for it," said Shannon Hines, captain.

They played their first round of regionals against Ames. The team captured first at the Saydel Tournament where Michelle Schlenker and Hines made the all-tournament team. Captains Le and Schlenker made the I-35 all-tournament team. There the Dragons came in second place.

Seven players were chosen for the Little Hawkeye All-Conference team. Schlenker and Hines made first team, Abbie Vis and Le were on second team. Honorable mentions went to Courtney Hansen, Kim Hammen and Jill Zeiger. "I thought that this was the first year everyone worked as a team. We all liked each other and encouraged each other and just had fun working together. That is what helped us win matches," said Vis.

When asked about the season Coach Wuttke said, "This is the best season record in JHS history. It's the first time in a long time any girls' ball sport won conference."

Learning the Meaning of Working Together

"Help!" "Free ball!" "Nice Serve!" "Victory!!" These were just a few of the most often heard shouts on the junior varsity and freshman volleyball courts. Both teams had excellent seasons.

The JV record was 8-5-3. The team was very excited about this accomplishment.

Stephanie Grandia, sophomore and outside hitter, said, "I think the improvement we made this year is a sign of what is to come. With the freshmen also improving we should be really good in the next few years."

Coach Grieman was proud of her players and said, "This group has finally learned to work together as a team." They showed their accomplishments by beating their first two opponents, Nevada and Norwalk. The team then suffered two losses but came back with a victory over Carlisle.

Some of the team's accomplishments included capturing the second place title in the conference and placing third in the Saydel Tournament.

Christine Lim Yao, setter, remarked, "I was proud of the accomplishment and I think it made us work harder because we learned from some of the mistakes we made."

Coach Grieman looks forward to next season by saying, "JV is a preparation for varsity and I feel that several of these players may contribute to next year's varsity team."

The freshman team goal was to go undefeated. They came very close to accomplishing this goal. Their only defeat was to Perry.

"They have excellent volleyball skills. They serve exceptionally well," commented coach Dave Beason. "What contributed most to their winning season was the comradery that existed between the players."

"This year was really fun. Everybody played and I think we all helped make it such a winning season," Jaime Johnson said of her team's season.

All We Need is Experience

Soccer

The Johnston soccer team began its season by recapturing the Johnston Jamboree trophy from Urbandale. They won the conference with a 6-0-1 record in the Des Moines Suburban League. The only tie came at the hands of Carlisle on a very rainy day that made the ball hard to handle. Rian Bess, Scott Fleener, Jeff Rains, Matt Shera, and Charlie Wilkinson received the All-Conference First-Team honors. Coach Wandro said, "We're looking to equal the record and tie for another conference championship next year."

The lack of established divisions among different schools resulted in some very good matches through the course of the season. Some of the best games came against Dowling and Urbandale. The Dragons capped the season by traveling to Sioux City to play Sioux City North. Although they didn't always win they improved their style and gained a lot of experience.

Cross Country

The girls' cross country team had three letterwinners, two of whom were All-Conference runners. Dianna Leftridge and Lisa Schultz placed eleventh and thirteenth respectively at the conference meet. Missy Oldham was the team's other senior.

Some of the highlights of the season were the third place finish at conference and the consecutive high level performance in the twelve meets. JHS finished third or fourth in most of their meets. Coach Wandro said, "This is the best year Johnston has ever had!"

The boys' cross country team was led by junior Asim Mishra. Freshmen had the opportunity to compete at the varsity level due to the lack of seniors on the team.

Mr. Wandro said, "I have much optimism for next year." This optimism is due to the fact that the team finished the majority of its meets in the middle of the pack.

Determination Creates Waves

GIRLS

"Being part of the team taught me the quality of hard work and devotion." This is what freshman Tara Thieleke had to say about her UHS swim team experience. Her hard work really showed at the Lincoln meet. It was the first time she swam varsity. Tara swam the 500-freestyle and won.

Senior Jill Papenham was voted hardest worker. Her efforts and her outstanding leadership helped to pull the team together.

"This year's team was really great to work with. We worked hard and had a lot of fun. I know I'll never forget the senior's Flash and Splash!" remembers Papenham.

The team had an outstanding season. They not only defeated conference rival Newton, they also won the CIC meet and placed third in the district. On an average, they won their dual meets by 72 points.

BOYS

"We wanted to get as many people to State as possible and I wanted to break as many records as possible," explained senior Co-Captain Ryan Flannery after the State meet. He placed tenth in the 500 Freestyle, 18th in the 200

Freestyle and 20th in the 200 Medley Relay. He also broke the school record in the 200 Freestyle with a time of 1:51:43.

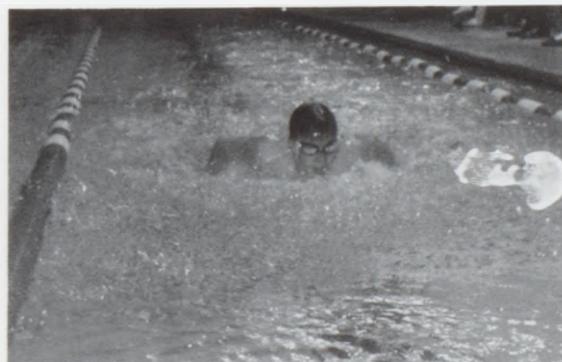

The team goals were all met with Flannery and sophomore Adam Fausch breaking the 200 Free Relay time of 1:34:63. They sent seven swimmers to State, three of which were JHS swimmers. These swimmers were Flannery, Fausch, and Flannery. Fausch placed 22nd in the 200

Free Relay with a time of 1:34.63 which broke the school record. Dan Flannery placed 20th in the 200 Medley Relay with a time of 1:45.91.

Coach Walling stated, "The season was super exciting with only four returning swimmers and ending with a winning record for the first time in five years."

Walling felt that the combined talents of Ryan and Dan Flannery added versatility to the team, and that the freshman members added depth.

-Beth Vandermeulen

After finishing the 200 freestyle, senior Ryan Flannery checks his time.

Coming up for air, sophomore Adam Fausch swims the 100 yard butterfly. Fausch also swam the 200 freestyle relay and placed 22nd in the state.

District Champs Break Records

Records are made for a reason: so the Johnston Varsity Girls' Basketball Team can break them. Not only did they set the most records, they also upset the sixth-rated team in the state at districts. "The highlight of the season was a 64-61 upset victory over sixth rated Urbandale in the District Tournament," said coach Craig Oldham.

Michelle Schlenker agreed saying, "We were really excited that we won districts. We knew we could beat Urbandale if we worked as a team and played hard." The team captured Johnston's first District title.

Team unity was one factor that led to the Dragons' winning season. "Everyone entered the season with a good attitude and a desire to win. The fact that we worked as a team and were all friends was a key factor to getting us as far as we went," said Courtney Hansen, forward.

The offensive team broke the season point record with 1,410 points. Schlenker led the team in scoring with a 29 ppg. She set a school record with 1,299 career points. With an average of 16 ppg, Missy Oldham, was second. Oldham also led the team in free throws, shooting 73%.

The defensive team was also busy setting new records. Jill Zeiger led the team with a record breaking 29 blocked shots. She also led the team with 134 rebounds. With 76 steals, Melissa Toney set another new record.

"We all worked really well together and we got along," said Toney. Guard Jenny Miller and Toney tied with eight steals in one game, setting yet another record.

As if breaking records wasn't enough for this team, some of the players made the Little Hawkeye All-Conference Team. Schlenker, Oldham and Toney made First Team. Special Mention went to Zeiger. Honorable Mention went to Shannon Hines and Hansen. Schlenker also made the Iowa Basketball Coach's Association District Team for Central Iowa.

Coach Oldham said, "The three seniors will be hard to replace next season. Their talents and leadership will always be remembered as the keys to a great season."

Teamwork Lifts Girls One Step Closer

"When the season began I noticed we had a very talented group of freshman who had very little confidence in their abilities to play the game. It was my goal to instill on these ladies confidence that they could compete with any team on the schedule." This was the attitude of freshman girls' basketball coach, Dave Beason.

This was their year to put it all together. Some of the players felt they were unified and began to show team spirit. Anna Eilander, a new player, noticed the unification. "This year we didn't have the record we would have liked but we accomplished many team goals such as, we played as a team, won as a team, and lost as a team, but no matter what, we worked together as a team the whole year long. I'm looking forward to next year."

All in all the freshman finished their season with five wins and put up a great fight with all of the other teams.

The sophomore girls' basketball coach Rick Rynning believed in his team from the first game to the last. The whole team always felt better about themselves with Mr. Rynning's encouragement all season. Linda Kinney, a guard on the sophomore girls' basketball team, also lent a lot of support during the season. Even though she was injured at the end of the season she continued to give encouragement and support to the rest of the players.

Their record was not what they had wanted. They knew that they had advanced this year but they didn't have the record to show for it. Tara Oiler says "I know we have a lot of talent in our team, but it never worked as we planned. I think if we pull it together, we could have a great season."

That was the feeling of most of the team. Tera Buitenwerf believed, "We had our ups and downs, we may not be great yet, but at least the only way we can go is up."

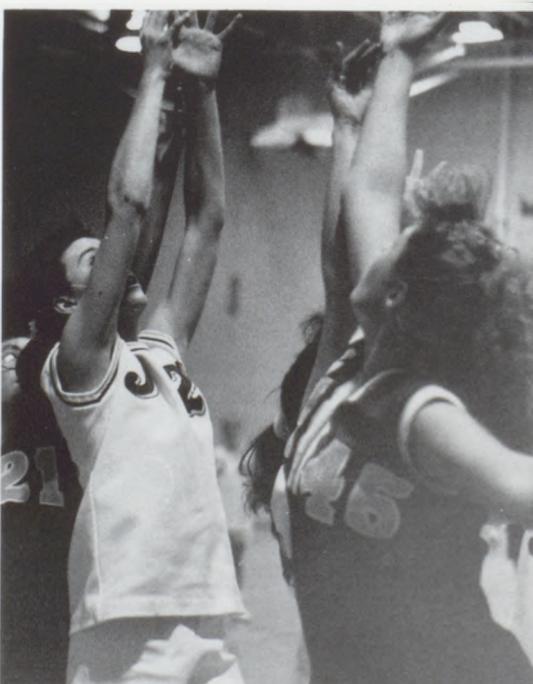

The sophomores do have the skill they just need to bring it together. If they work hard at it next year they may end up with a record that will show all those years of hard work.

- Sarah Hartle

After advancing the ball up the court, freshman Jill Foley prepares to pass the ball to one of her teammates.

Freshman Amanda Brannan jumps to tear the rebound from her opponent's hands. Brannan was one of the leading rebounders for the ninth grade team.

Taking control over one of Nevada's forwards, sophomore Sarah Hartle puts on tough defensive pressure. Hartle started for the tenth grade team.

Nobody's getting past this guy! Junior Chad Barnes puts tough defensive pressure on his opponent.

The Dragons tried a new game plan this year by substituting teams instead of individuals. Taking part in this strategy is senior Brian Edwards.

Two Seconds Shy of State

"Our team finally had a nearly undefeated season and with the best crowd ever cheering them on, the team was unstoppable," said junior Brian Jorgenson.

He was right. The crowd support at the games was at an all-time high this year. That, along with a winning season, made the team's spirits soar.

The season proved to be successful. With only one conference loss, the team captured the conference title.

The almost perfect season started out with a tough game against Lincoln. The Dragons came up short on that effort, but they quickly came back with a win against Saydel. They continued on a winning streak until a late season game against Norwalk.

Tournament action started at home against Dallas-Center-Grimes. A victory there allowed them to advance.

The next challenge was a tough game against Colfax-Mingo. A late shot from the Tigers tied it up and the game went into overtime. Nervous fans, coaches and teammates held their breath as junior Kyle Sanders made the winning shot in the last few seconds of the game.

The last obstacle for the Dragons was against Grinnell at Ankeny. "They're good, but they're beatable," said sophomore Paul Roarick about the opposing team. Anticipation for the game was high. The clock was down to two minutes, the Dragons up by one. Those two minutes seemed to last forever.

Somehow, Grinnell got a shot off with less than two seconds left. They missed the shot, but unfortunately got the rebound and scored to win the game.

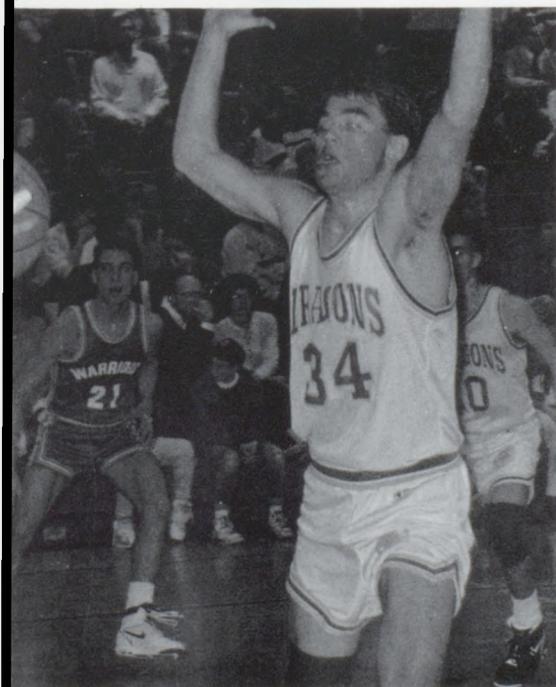

Although the team had high hopes of advancing to the State Tournament, everyone, including fans, proud parents and especially the team itself was impressed that the Dragons made this season one of the greatest in Johnston history.

Mission Accomplished: Goals Achieved

Winners is the word that comes to mind when speaking of the freshman and sophomore boys basketball teams. The freshmen finished the season with 14 wins and three losses, while the sophomores closed with 14 wins and two losses. The sophomores' two losses were at the buzzer, one loss came at the end of regulation time, and the other in overtime. Lawler commented, "We're about one second away from being undefeated."

The sophomores were a solid team that didn't have any superstars, but they shined as a whole.

Mr. Carver said that the freshmen played together well. "All the team members made contributions to the team," he said.

Each of the teams had set goals for themselves. The freshmen wanted to be undefeated, which they came close to reaching. They set and accomplished the goal of winning the Polk County Tournament. The sophomore team wanted each individual player to improve and wanted the team to improve over last year. Coach Lawler had a personal goal for his team. He wanted to teach the guys all the details of the game. Lawler said, "I wanted them to be a student of the game."

The fact that the freshmen played well together was, of course, a strong point, but Carver says depth also made the team strong. He commented, "We have a lot of kids that can play outstanding basketball."

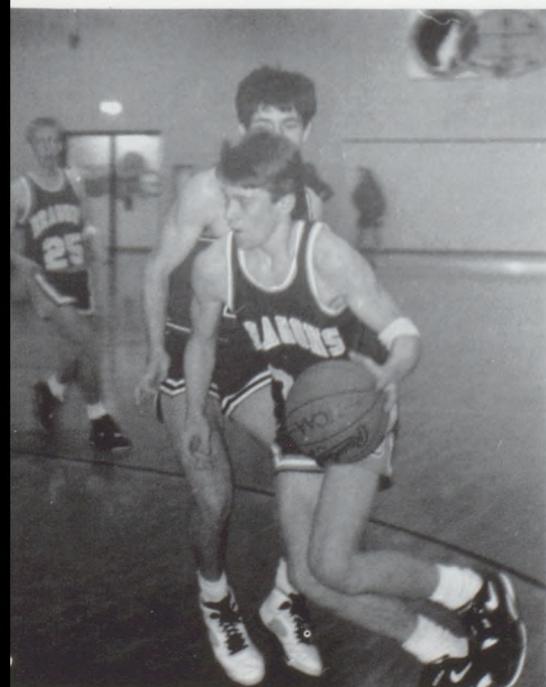

The press was one aspect of the sophomores' game that made them tough to beat. They had a strong rebounding team and they moved the ball well. Lawler said, "Each individual knows his role and does it well."

Carver has high expectations for this group of ball players saying, "I think that as long as the boys continue to improve and work together, that before their high school career is over they will be state champions."

What does Coach Lawler have to say about his first year at Johnston? He says, "The parental support has been nice all year. I've really enjoyed coaching these guys and being around them. They are an excellent group."

-Gina Yanders

Sophomore Scott Kurtz drives past a North Polk guard to score the quick two. Kurtz was the sophomore's second leading scorer, averaging 10.3 points a game with a total of 164 points.

"No way you're getting past me," says freshman Wade Sewell as he puts tough defensive pressure against a Ballard player. The freshmen won their opening game against Ballard 71-41.

Team Struggles Individuals Shine

"It was neat that I could win the state title at the same time Coach Baltzley was inducted into the Hall of Fame." These were senior Brian Duckworth's feelings on capturing the 135 pound State Championship in Class 2A this year. As captain of the team, Duckworth also broke the school record for career wins. He ended with a record of 128-25-1. He was chosen as the Most Valuable Wrestler for the second year.

"All the hard work I had done all season paid off when I got to wrestle at state." Ryan Woodruff reflected his feelings of pride for his first showing in the state tournament. He was chosen as captain of next year's team, along with fellow state qualifier Rian Bess.

Bess had an impressive showing at the meet, qualifying for the semi-final round. On his performance, Bess said "Going to state made it well worth the hard work and cutting the extra five pounds all season to make weight."

As a team, the Dragons had a slow start. Toward the end of the season, however, they improved significantly. They went from a fourth and fifth place team in December to a second and third place team in February.

While the team may have struggled in dual meets and tournaments, many individuals made significant achievements. For instance, there were a few varsity wrestlers who were injured before or during the season. This allowed many freshmen to compete at the varsity level. One of these wrestlers was Joe McClung. He was chosen by his teammates as the Most Outstanding Freshman.

Senior Jamie Webb was chosen as the Most Improved Wrestler. He finished the season with 24 wins and 18 losses.

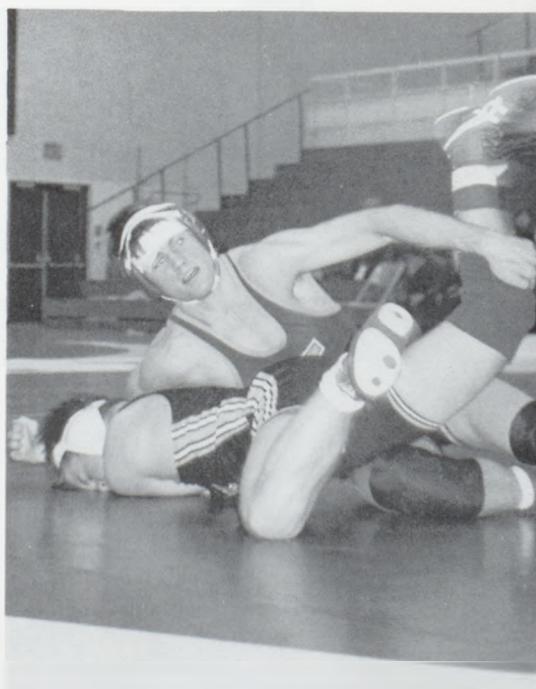

Head Coach Frank Baltzley has been coaching wrestling at Johnston for 22 years and has had only two losing seasons. His excellence in coaching was recognized when he was inducted into the Iowa High School Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Opponents Left In The Dust

"It was great to be a part of a team that was the best in the conference!" exclaimed sophomore Cam Christensen.

Both boys' and girls' track teams came home as Little Hawkeye Champions.

Along with being conference champs, the boys' track team won first place in the Dragon Relays, and second at Grinnell and the Nevada Relays. There were five state qualifiers on the boys' team: Steve Rittgers, John Moller, Chad Barnes and Jason Meyers in the 4x100 meter relay and Jeremy Heinen in the shotput. Jason Veeder and Justin Perdue were alternates for the relay team.

Though everyone must work to make a team, there are usually a few outstanding leaders. "Steve Rittgers worked hard in a lot of events. He set a good example for the younger team members," commented freshman Grady Tibboel.

Coach George Sypniewski said, "This team has a lot of potential. If they prepare themselves to succeed, next year we could have a very good team."

"The Johnston girls' track team had one of their finest seasons," stated Coach

Craig Oldham. They won invitational meets at Johnston, Waukee, Bondurant and Nevada. They finished second at Carlisle and placed third at the district meet.

The girls also tied for fifth place overall at the state meet. Senior Dianna Leftridge was one of several state placers from the girls' team. Leftridge placed second in the 100 and 200 meter dash. She was the state champion in the long jump, out-jumping the second place winner by more than 10 inches.

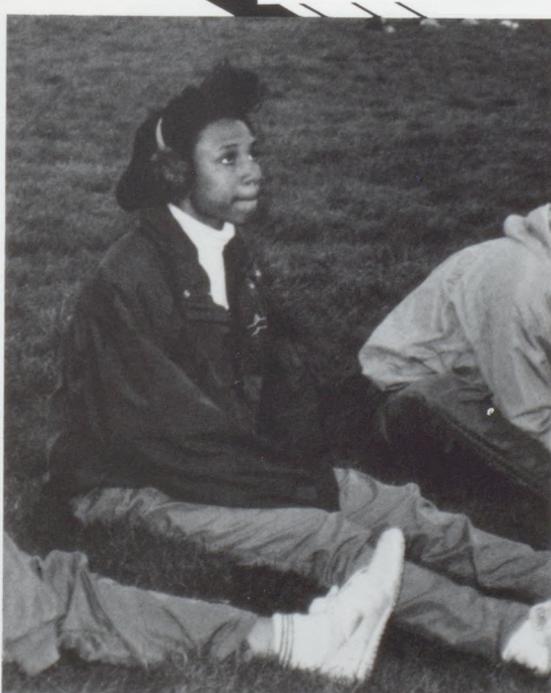

The 4x400 meter relay team composed of Leftridge, sophomore Sarah Hartle and seniors Missy Oldham and Lisa Schultz finished twelfth at the state track meet.

Freshman Amanda Brannan placed tenth in the 100 meter hurdles. Oldham placed seventh in the 800 meter run with a time of 2:25.2, which broke the school record.

"The fact that we sent five girls to State was pretty outstanding!" exclaimed freshman Jenny Smith. "Even though we'll lose some great team members, the seniors, I think we'll continue to work hard and have great successes again in the future."

-Joanna Stookey

Checking out the competition in the long jump is senior Dianna Leftridge. Dianna had a great year, placing first in the long jump at state. She also placed in the 4x400 relay and the 100 and 200 meter dashes.

Freshman Amanda Brannon barely slides over the high jump bar. Brannon went to state and placed 11th in the 100 meter hurdles.

Tennis Teams Tough To Match

Tension mounts as the players approach the courts. As they get closer to the nets, they eye their opponents. These opponents proved to be pretty tough competition for both boys' and girls' teams.

The number one singles player on the boys' team, junior Brian Morris, said, "The CIC meet was unquestionably the best part of the year, because we were an underdog going into it. With an upset, we took third place over teams such as Boone, Newton and Ankeny."

Morris placed third in the CIC conference tournament. Teammate sophomore Matt Mullenix and his partner from Urbandale earned fourth in the number four doubles position.

The girls' team also had action with tough competition. "I felt that going to the Knoxville Invitational gave us more of a chance to play schools we don't normally play," said senior Lisa Moss.

Since several members were marching in the Drake Relays Parade, the team was not at full strength at Knoxville. However, freshman Tara Thieleke secured a second place medal even though she played the number two singles position, three seeds higher than her normal position.

While the day of the Knoxville Invitational was warm and sunny, the weather during the rest of the season wasn't as favorable. "It was a very rainy spring. There were many rescheduled meets, and the team had to be flexible and adjust to wind, weather, and changed meet dates. Playing and serving in wind gusts in excess of 30 mph added to make for an interesting and challenging season," commented Coach Shari Walling.

Junior Amy Tedesco played in the number one position for the entire tennis season, and will return next year along with nine other varsity players.

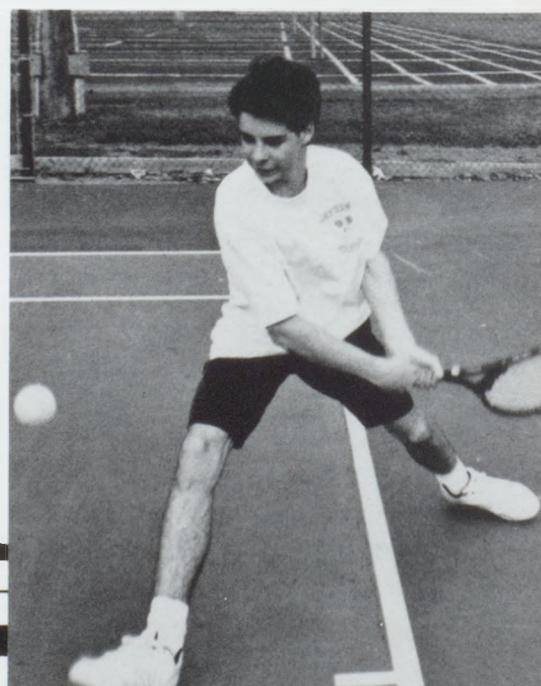

Another encouraging sign for the team was talk of six new courts west of the high school. "I'm excited about the possibility of new tennis courts. This should increase interest and support for the tennis program," said Walling.

-Joanna Stookey

During a meet against Hoover, freshman Skeeter Thompson lunges to return the serve.

"Got it!" yells junior Brian Morris as he pounds the ball before it goes out-of-bounds.

In order to smash the ball back to her opponent, senior Lisa Moss rushes to the net.

Teams Take Third at Sectionals

"We had a lot of depth this year and a lot of golfers with a one to two stroke difference in their averages. All were getting better as the year went on," said Boys' Golf coach, Frank Sanders.

Practices and the first four meets were cancelled because of rain. This didn't stop the team. With little practice their overall averages were good. The top seven golfers averaged between 41-45 strokes for nine holes per meet. Of these seven team members four were returning golfers. The team had only one senior, Jason Scheller.

The Boys' Golf team captured third place at the Little Hawkeye Conference. "Having not practiced because of bad weather conditions, taking third at conference was the great thrill of our season. So was advancing to Districts, where we played our best," commented Erik Halling.

The boys placed third at Sectionals and advanced to Districts.

The Girls' Golf team also took third at Sectionals. "Even though our day started off bad with a blown out tire on the interstate, our team didn't give up. We ended up third at Sectionals," said Lori Mallett.

They had five returning golfers who helped pull the team together and assisted the newcomers. There was only one senior, Jesi Foley, a four year letter winner.

Julianne

Friestad was an excellent golfer. She was the medalist throughout the season. This was her second year making Regionals. To improve her skills, she not only attended the team's practices, but also golfed frequently on her own.

Mr. Carver coached the team and he felt that they had improved from last year and was pleased with the progress they made.

Junior Julianne Friestad tees off on her last hole. She was the only golfer from JHS to make it to Regionals.

"Where did the ball go?" wonders junior Sarah Walters, as she prepares to practice her swing.

Unlimited Potential

Academics are the basic reason why we are in school. But notes, lectures and tests are just one aspect of the classes which fill up our days. Our time is also spent doing experiments, taking field trips and completing special projects to get more involved with our learning. All this involvement makes the creation of memories inevitable, whether it be because of a funny comment made by a classmate or an incident that became imprinted in your mind.

The next few pages are filled with words that come from the heart of JHS, the students. Here are the things that made us laugh, groan, smile and sweat as we made our way from periods one to eight each day.

Unlimited Opportunities

Long before the bell for first hour rang and after the final bell dismissing students for the day rang, JHS students could be found at school. They were busy planning activities for their clubs to take part in.

Clubs were yet another exciting aspect of the fast-paced life at JHS. Whether students interest lied in student leadership, journalism, academic competition or music, there was something for everyone. Throughout the year clubs took part in a variety of activities. Some of them were just for fun, such as the Club Olympics, and some worked to increase awareness among the student body, such as TLC's Red Ribbon Campaign.

The large amount of students who took part in these events showed how dedicated the student body was. They were willing to put in extra time in order to make JHS a school that gets involved!

-Stephanie Eich

"Don't knock down the cones!" Senior Beth Watne sees what it's like to be driving drunk. TLC sponsored this fun activity with the help of Dodge and MADD.

The Senior board members of National Honor Society, Carrie Holcomb, Chris Ring, Stephanie Eich, and Kim Hammel, proudly look on as newly inducted member, junior Amy Doak signs her name in the registrar.

Brain Power at Work

Hard workers... intelligent...leaders. These words describe the qualities held by members of National Honor Society, Academic Team and the recipients of Academic Letters.

The National Honor Society was a prestigious service organization whose members must be active and have a grade point of 3.400 or higher.

A goal of NHS was to sponsor a foster child for a full year. In order to do this, NHS members raffled Billy Joel concert tickets, held bake sales, and a money toss. (Money toss = throwing loose change at president Brian Duckworth to collect those last few dollars.) This money sponsored Aracelis Martinez of Santo Domingo.

"This year's group did an outstanding job of providing service to the school and international community," commented Mrs. Scott, the group's sponsor. Some of the services provided included holding monthly story-times with the pre-school handicapped kids and the blood drive in April with Student Council.

Mrs. Scott said, "They filled their leadership roles well."

The Academic Team was a group that entered contests which quizzed them on their knowledge. Mr. Doudna, the team's sponsor, said that they prepared for the Academic Decathlon by studying the curriculum on the computer.

Team members entered two

Knowledge Master Opens, the Wartburg Quizbowls, the Conference Quizbowl, the AEA 11 contest, and Citizen B.

In the fall, students who had kept a grade point above 3.75 received Academic Letters for their efforts during the 89-90 school year. At a ceremony in September first year recipients were awarded with an Academic J, past letter winners received a lamp of learning pin.

-Gina Yanders

Thumbs up! Junior Asim Mishra enthusiastically displays his Academic Letter "J" which he earned by maintaining a cumulative grade point of 3.75 or higher.

"That'll be 40 cents, please," say freshmen Rachael Knudtson and Tiffany Reynolds. The Key Club sold doughnuts every morning before school in the Student Center.

School's Scotch Tape

There were many groups at JHS this year that acted as the scotch-tape of the student body. That is, they were the ones that held the school together. These groups included TLC, SADD, and Key Club.

"TLC is here to help students have fun without using drugs or alcohol," stated Mrs. Morris, leader of both TLC and SADD.

TLC, along with MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) and Dodge, held a demonstration of what it would be like driving drunk, and the dangers that take place while driving drunk.

"We try to show people that an accident really could happen, and it's not something that is just on t.v.," remarked freshman Joy Phillips about SADD.

SADD was born again at JHS during the Leadership Retreat in November after a year on standby. Since then, SADD has joined with TLC for various school activities including the Lock-in this spring.

The Lock-in was held Friday night,

May 11, in order to keep students from drinking and driving. The night included games, fun, a talent show, and food.

"We also go clowning," added sophomore Mindy Musal, "which is when we go over to the elementary schools and talk to them about drugs." This year's clowns included Cally Coleman, Dalene Grant, Joe Bouger, Wade Foster, Amy Odland, Jenny Miller, Jill Olsen, Tiffany Reynolds, Kristi Ralph, Kate Nielsen, Heather Morrison, and Becky May.

"Our biggest problem in Key Club this year was attendance," commented junior Wade Foster, president of Key Club. "I am guilty of this also, but whenever we got enough people at the meetings, we accomplished a lot."

This year, Key Club sold doughnuts in the Student Center each morning. They used this money to increase their funds which were used to sponsor various community activities.

-David Ring

"Respect your body!" Junior Mikee Grimes gives her Safety Kid rule to Clive Elementary students while fellow club members senior Dianna Leistridge and junior Steffanie Powers look on. Safety Kids also included juniors Jenni Glover, Jill Zeiger and Melissa Toney.

Hard Work Pays Off

To be a good leader around the school and the community takes a lot of time and hard work, as shown by the participants of Mock Trial, Student Council and the Leadership Retreat.

"Objection, your honor!" This and other legal terms became like a second language to the participants of the Mock Trial competition.

"Mock Trial is not something that you can just go to practice a couple times and expect to do well in. You have to take the advice you get and make yourself a better, and eventually excellent, witness or lawyer," summarized Jennifer Kreps.

Two teams went on to the state competition and competed very well.

While the Mock Trial teams were preparing for competition, two groups that were formed out of the Leadership Retreat were busy setting good examples for younger students.

Safety Kids was a group of six students sponsored by Mrs. Morris. They put on a play for elementary students to encourage them not to use drugs.

Steffanie Powers, one of the Safety Kids, said "It's neat to know that, because these kids look up to us, we could make a difference."

S.A.I.L. (Students Active In Leadership) members were giving an anti-drug message to kids as well. These students, who went to the Leadership Retreat for a second time, talked to fifth grade students. They also helped new students learn their way around school and feel welcome.

When these new students arrived at school, they probably noticed something the Student Council was doing. Whether it was organizing the Homecoming activities or helping sponsor a blood drive, these elected officials were always busy with something around the school. Student government worked hard all year to get things done.

-Jenni Glover

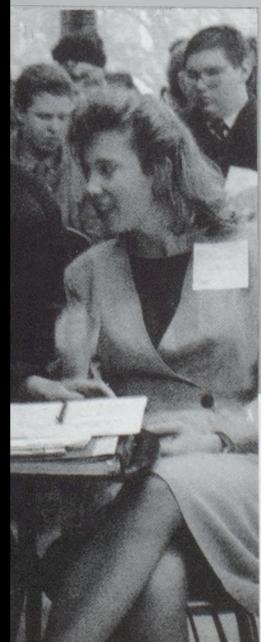

Seniors Gina Yanders and Beth Watne enjoy cookies and juice after giving blood at the blood drive. Beth feels a little dizzy, so she lays down for a while. Later, she still doesn't feel well and is wheeled back to the chorus room to rest.

Mr. Albrecht serves senior Pete Hicks breakfast after the Colorado trip. Mr. Albrecht had to buy the breakfast after he challenged them to win a silver medal at the Festival of the Rockies, and they did.

A "Rocky" Trip

Colorado here we come! That was the Concert Band and Chorus' motto for the Festival of the Rockies held in Estes Park, Colorado. These two groups did fund raisers to raise money for their trip.

They started out the year with the gift catalog. Next came fruit and cheese, then candy bars and, finally, pizzas. But all the fund raising was worth it when the time came to leave. The trip had a "rocky" beginning.

Wednesday night, May 15, when the group left, they were already behind schedule. Having to repack the equipment, pouring rains and a mysterious smoking bus all slowed the group down. Even with these problems, the band was able to earn a silver medal at the festival.

"I was hoping that we would perform cleaner than we did at Large Group," commented Mr. Albrecht, "and I knew we did when we had finished."

The Chorus also performed well at the festival. This was the first contest the chorus had participated in, and they received a bronze medal. "I was elated when we won the bronze medal at the festival," said Mrs. White. "I also knew that our goals that we set in the fall were met."

Besides earning medals in Colorado, the two groups found success within the borders of Iowa.

The Concert Band performed at State Large Group Contest, receiving their fifth consecutive I rating. The Senior High Chorus performed in the Choral Extravaganza held in February. The Chorus performed with the fourth through the eighth grade choruses. The concert closed with the song "Down by the Riverside," which was sung in mass.

-Kristen De Groat

After being named Grand Champions, Swing Choir members senior Lisa Moss, junior Wade Foster, seniors Missy Oldham, Ryan Flannery and Jesi Foley share their proud moment together.

Making Magic

You could call it magic. Yes, this year was definitely magical for the members of the Swing Choir, Sound Advice and Jazz Band.

With a third place finish at the Sciba Jazz Festival, fourth place at the Jack Oats Jazz Festival in Earlham and a superior rating at state contest, the members of the Jazz Band were pleased and especially proud. It also gave the band much confidence throughout the year.

"Trip the Light Fantastic was our favorite," said freshman Sound Advice member Andy Offenburger.

The crowds loved it too. In fact, everything the Sound Advice did this year, they did with style.

It was the first year in the history of JHS that Sound Advice was given the honor of second place in the prep division at the Urbandale Show Choir Jamboree. This, along with a division I rating at state made it the best year possible.

The members of Sound

Advice showed their support for the Swing Choir by cheering them on at their many competitions.

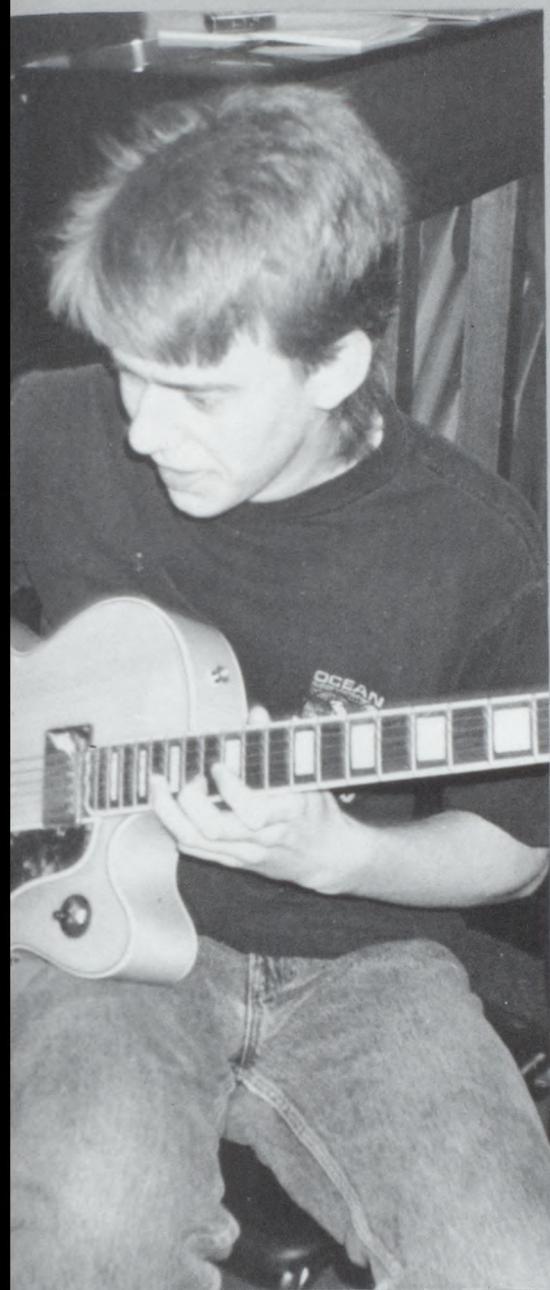

There was certainly a lot to cheer about. They received a superior rating at state contest, placed third overall at the Urbandale competition and to top it all off, the Swing Choir was named Grand Champion of the prestigious Cedar Rapids Jefferson Show Choir Invitational on March 9.

"It was like a dream!" said junior Amy Doak. "You can't imagine what it's like to be the smallest school to win the biggest contest in the Midwest, unless you are a part of it."

Both the Swing Choir and Sound Advice wrapped up the banner year with the spring show, "There's Magic In The Air" and then they were off to Estes Park, Colorado, where Sound Advice received a bronze medal and Swing Choir captured a gold medal.

-Wade Foster

"Let's go over that one more time," says junior Jazz Band member Ryan Farrell during an early morning practice. Hard practice was the key to a successful year.

Elevating Spirits

Whether it was at pep assemblies or spirit events, the cheerleaders were there to boost school spirit. The cheerleaders were responsible for leading the crowds in cheers, and for hanging up locker signs, wishing the players "good luck."

More than ever, school spirit was evident this year, inspiring the teams to victory. Captain

Jesi Foley said, "We couldn't do anything without the large crowds. It's especially great that everything is going so well during my senior year."

The wrestling cheerleaders had a special experience this year. Since Johnston had a wrestler go to the finals of the State Tournament, these cheerleaders had the opportunity to cheer at Vet's Auditorium on live television.

"It was really neat to be on the mat at the finals because we got to cheer for Brian every step of the way," said junior Jenni Glover.

Throughout the year, the cheerleaders took their spirit-filled attitudes to various competitions, receiving high scores at many of them.

Preparing for future generations of cheerleaders, a clinic was held for the students of Wallace Elementary. The students were taught various cheering and dance routines.

"It was really fun working with kids because they looked up to us," said senior Nikky Ball.

-Stephanie Eich

As the crowd watches, senior Carrie Cranston and the rest of the Pom Squad do their routine to the song "Poison."

Entertaining is Work

Entertaining takes a lot of practice. The Marching Band, Colorguard and the Pom Squad did a lot of that.

This year the Marching Band and Colorguard had a whole new look. Brand new uniforms were presented at the Homecoming parade. Mr. Albrecht and senior Jill Papenheim, drum major, led the band during the half-time performances at the football games. Practices were at 7:30 in the morning twice a week. "The best part of Marching Band was when we got donuts after early morning practices," commented freshman Jill Hansen.

The Colorguard had more than just a new look, they had a new choreographer. They had practice once a week. The Colorguard accomplished a lot this year, with their brand new routines to go with the new look that they had. "Ms. Brannon made us work hard, but it was fun and it paid off," sophomore Eryn Houle commented.

Working hard was something the Pom Squad knew how to do. They practiced at 6:30 a few mornings a week. They performed at nearly every home basketball game to the hottest new songs. The Pom Squad entertained the crowds with their new dance moves.

Even in the summer, the Pom Squad worked on their routines by traveling to colleges to meet other Pom Squads. They often helped each other with new moves.

"I thought it was great to go to the colleges and meet the older kids. I also got to know the juniors and seniors a lot better by working so hard together," sophomore Linda Kinney said.

One thing can be said for the Marching Band, Colorguard and the Pom Squad: they definitely know what hard work is all about.

Waiting in anticipation for the beginning of her routine to "Shinedown," played by the Marching Band, is sophomore Colorguard member Tera Buitenwerf.

Unlimited Faces

Four minutes seem like a long time to get from one end of the school to the other. Let's face it-our school building isn't that big. But try getting from English to algebra in between classes with every student packed into the halls.

We're growing at a phenomenal rate. As you look through this section, you'll see a lot of new faces, as well as some familiar ones. With each of these new faces comes new talents, personalities and abilities that enhance the talents of those already here. Together, everyone helps to make JHS a great place to go to school. Or, as our motto says, Together Everyone Accomplishes More.

Junior Brian Block shows off his support for the troops in Saudi Arabia. Many students showed their support, but Brian's was definitely the most original.

Looking for Trouble

Trouble...which one of us has never experienced that feeling of dread that hits you in the pit of your stomach when you've done something wrong, and know beyond a shadow of a doubt that you are going to get caught?

Junior Heather Morrison knows this feeling from personal experience. "When I walked in the door and saw my mom sitting there waiting for me, I knew I was done for. I was oh...10 or 11 hours late. She was SO mad.

Some people are so picky."

It happens to everyone sooner or later. Maybe you stayed out past your curfew, went somewhere you weren't supposed to, didn't clean your room, or received a low grade on a test.

Why do some of us keep doing the things we know will bring on punishment? Some of us may want to see how much we can really get away with and others are on a life-long quest to defy our parents. Then there are those who have to show how "cool" they are by breaking the rules, and those who just do not think about what they are doing.

Does punishment really deter us from repeating our offenses? Junior Amy Tedesco responded to this question with a smile and answered, "If I get in trouble for doing something, it won't stop me from doing it again. The next time I will just be more careful."

-Carrie Holcomb

"Yes, I know I'm late for class, but I can stop and pose for a picture," says junior Wade Foster.

Aaaaaaaaaahhhh!!!

The classic symptoms are always present: balding, sudden hunger pangs and a lack of concern for personal hygiene. Stress is a rude awakening for the junior class.

How do you get away from stress? Although no answer has been found to this question, some definite steps can be taken to avoid the situation in the first place. Brian Morris points out, "If it's stress relief you're looking for, Mr. Partington's chemistry class is just the place not to be."

Not everyone finds school all that stressful. Ryan Farrell thinks school is "pretty easy." His recent transfer to Johnston may be the reason for this rare opinion. "It's because my old school in Texas was a bigger school," Farrell confided.

The junior year is also the year that students seriously check out colleges. Tri Le believes, "The SAT and ACT just make school harder.

All the school work plus the tests and all this college application stuff get tiring real fast."

"All the pressure really adds up," admits Joe Bouger. When asked to find an answer to the stress question, Bouger explained, "You gotta take a lil' break now and then; extend the weekend here and there; give your brain time to chill."

Blood on the Highway

"When you go to get your license, make sure you get in front of the old people." At least that's the advice Dan Carolus gave me, when I asked him what it was like waiting in line for his license.

But, at least Dan was in the right place. Adam Fausch told me, "The line was three hours long, and then I found out I was in the wrong one."

Getting your license is probably one of the most exciting times in your life. However, you have to go through 30 hours of class time with Mr. Briggs, where you get to watch some real movie classics. You know, like "Blood on the Highway," and "Body-bags Aren't Fun."

You also may have experienced blood on the highway in the six hours of driving you need to pass.

Once you get your license, though, your life changes. Since you don't have to ride the bus anymore, you can get up later, and home earlier. Best of all, you get to laugh at all the people who have to ride the bus, the same ones who you promised to drive home once you got your license.

You also don't have to rely on your parents or friends to get to and from all the games, dances, and parties.

Finally, since I'm the youngest in the sophomore class, you will get your licenses before me. So, if you ever see me waiting for the bus, maybe you could just stop and ask me if I need a ride.

It's The Dating Game

How old were you when you went on your first date? "Well, that depends. What do you mean by dating?" replied a lot of the sophomore girls when asked that question. "When we were in eighth grade we used to meet guys at the movie and call that dating, but it's different now," explained one girl.

The majority of the girls began dating when they were 13. Morgan Holcomb recalls her first date: "I was 13 years old and I went to an 'R' rated movie with a 17 year old. It was the first time I'd snuck into an 'R' movie. I had to go to the bathroom four times because I was so scared of getting caught."

A few of the sophomores have even been on blind dates. Emily Hicks shared one of her experiences on a blind date. "I liked the guy at first, but then he started to get annoying. He asked me out again for the next night, but I said no. He sent me a dozen red roses with a card that said, 'I'll be waiting.' That was really sweet."

Guys and girls alike agree there's not a lot to do on dates in Des Moines. Most times couples go out to eat and to a movie or drive around.

So, what are the guys looking for in a relationship? Most of the replies were, "Someone who looks good." However, there are a few guys who are looking for something a little more serious. "I like a girl who can carry on a conversation," responded Greg Beck.

Be Home By 12:00!!!!

"Be careful, and be home by 11:30, okay?"

"11:30? But Mom--"

"I said 11:30 and I mean it...understand?"

Ah, the all too familiar sounds of the teenage years.. Most of us know what it is like to argue with our parents, and we tend to disagree about quite a few things. Curfews are definitely one of them.

For sophomores, the average curfew seems to be around midnight. "My parents set my curfew later as I get older, so I can't wait until my senior year. Who knows how late I'll get to stay out!" said Jill Wilcox.

Many students look forward to college, where they don't necessarily have a set curfew, and where their parents won't have any idea how late they come in. "It will be so awesome!" commented Carol Voorhees. "My parents won't have a clue. I can stay out as late as I want. That will be a big change."

Some lucky sophomores don't have to go away to college to stay out as late as they please. Linda Kinney said, "Not having a curfew really takes a lot of pressure off me when I am out with my friends."

Considering the fact that most restaurants, theaters and other places to just "hang out" all close earlier than midnight, making it home by twelve isn't too tough, but there are exceptions.

"Sometimes I feel that my parents don't trust me when they say 'Be home by 12:00', like I'm going to be doing something wrong. I think I should be able to come home when I want, as long as they know where I am and what I'm doing. I think I'm responsible enough for that," said Christine Lim Yao.

"My son's curfew is usually flexible," said Mrs. Phyllis Caswell, mother of sophomore Matt. "It all depends upon the situation. The most important thing is communication."

Brendan Sapienza said, "I hear so many people complain about how they have to be home so early. Imagine if your parents wouldn't even let you go out!"

People to Believe In

From Michael Jordan and Ozzie Osbourne to their parents, almost all of the freshmen have idols. People play an important role in everyone's life. They not only give you someone to look up to, they also can guide you to where you want to go in life.

Idols can have a very positive impact on people. Amanda Brannan agrees, "I like having idols because they're someone you can look up to and admire. They also become a good building block for working towards your goals."

Each freshman has a different idol, and every idol plays a different role in their life. For Jason Cox it's David Eddings: "He's the best science fiction author since Jules Verne."

Tyson Isles' idol, Jerry Rice, is a famous athlete. He says, "Jerry Rice is a good receiver, and I hope to catch the ball as well as him someday."

Some of them admire people closer to home. For example, "Gordy Allen is really cool, really smart and really funny. He is also an excellent attorney," Mike Remer stated.

Jenny Smith thought of her father first. "He's really smart and a neat person to be around."

So you see, idols can be super stars, common people and even some of your closest friends.

Thick and Thin

Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "He who has a thousand friends has not a friend to spare." That is the basic attitude concerning friends at JHS.

The influence of friends is present during both the good and bad times. They give support during the bad times and make the good ones even better.

There are certain qualities that everyone looks for in a friend. The most predominant qualities mentioned were "trustworthy", "loyal", "honest", "caring", "understanding" and "a good listener."

Patrick Porto, commenting on what he doesn't like about his friends says, "I don't like some of the people they hang around with." Anna Eilander doesn't like it when "they put people down."

Angie Claus says that her friends are very important in her life. She says, "If they are good enough friends then I can tell them anything. I can tell them my problems and they will help me." John Carr says that his friends are important for other reasons, too. Carr says his friends "give me ideas."

Everyday of our lives is influenced or touched by our friends. That is why, as the saying goes, "a friend's a friend forever."

Looking for Room 7

Upperclassmen..."pushing pennies"...lunch...Before you start high school, you worry about a lot of things. You wonder who you're going to sit with at lunch. "Eating was a big deal," remembered Shannon McClure.

You probably were worried about all the rumors and wondered if there was any truth to them. Amy Martin said, "Whatever Mr. Donahue says, it's not true!" For example, did any of you really buy elevator passes from him??

Pushing pennies is just a scare tactic which no one's ever heard of actually occurring. On this subject, Dani Doak commented, "You can't push pennies because there's no room."

The first day of high school meant lots of different things for different people. "The first day of high school was easy, because I'd been here a lot and knew a lot of people," remarked Crissy Hammen.

But for Doak, "The first day of school was scary until you found your friends."

And there were probably a few scared-looking freshmen roaming the school who looked like they didn't know where they were going. "I was really nervous because I couldn't find the auditorium, so I had to ask my friends where it was," said freshman Jodi Thompson.

After awhile, though, the freshmen started fitting in and becoming a part of everyday life at JHS. Expressing a common thought of many freshmen, Patrick Porto said, "It's a lot better than what I thought it would be."

3:20p.m. The halls are empty. The last final has been taken, the last book returned. All that is left are the memories. This book is an attempt to capture all of the memories and events that have made this a memorable year.

There were countless hours spent working on this book. Countless litres of Mountain Dew were consumed in an effort to sustain the staff through the long hours during deadline weeks.

Of course, this book couldn't have been made without the help of many people. First of all, thanks should go to: the secretary staff at JHS for answering all of our questions; (special thanks to Mrs. Briles for getting a phone in the journalism room!); to Mr. Downs for being so cooperative with our photo schedules and most of all for getting us our blessed Mac; to Mrs.

Babcock and the media staff for all of their help; to Mr. Weiss for allowing us to use the darkroom and to the rest of the JHS faculty for letting us into their classes to get those exciting action shots. We also need to thank Mr. Eckhardt for the wonderful photo he provided for us and to Mrs. Koth for settling all of our in-staff disagreements. Thanks to Woltz Studios and Danny's Photography for providing us with pictures. We especially need to thank Dr. Sundblad and Ruth for letting us disrupt them so often at the administration office to use their laser printer. (Hey-if we had our own, we wouldn't have been there!) Thanks also to Beth's grandpa for helping us send out our deadlines on time. Thank you to all of our ad sponsors-we couldn't have made it without you. And we can't forget to thank the student body without whom this book would have been impossible. Thanks for all your help.

The staff would especially like to thank Mrs. Beethold, our advisor. Thanks for all the hours you spent here "advising" us. Those all-night cram sessions wouldn't have been the same if you hadn't been there to help us write headlines!

Whew! Is that everyone? All the hard work aside, it was a lot of fun putting this book together. Friendships were formed through working on the journalism staff. It's a year that none of us will forget. I'm glad I've had the chance to work with such a wonderful group of people. Thanks for the "Unlimited" list of memories!!
